

Q7:2 QUESTION (1909)—2—By what name would you suggest that the local classes advertise their meetings, so as to avoid the confusion of a multiplicity of titles, such as: „Millennial Dawn, „Believers in the Atonement,” „Believers in the Precious Blood, „Bible Students,” etc.

ANSWER.—It is a difficult matter to know how to advertise, not for ourselves, but difficult to keep from being misunderstood by the people. „Church of God”; „Church of the Living God”; „Church of Christ.” Any of those names would suit us very well, and we would have no objections to them, but we find that there are various denominations who have appropriated those titles, not that we think they have a right to apply them to themselves, but we would like to live in peace. It is a difficult matter to decide, and each class will have to do that for themselves.
