

„Human laws derive all their binding force from their divine original, the good must demand that which is right, and condemn that which is wrong.”—Blackstone.

=====